

Parc Aventure SA

3 Locations in Switzerland

The Location

Parc Aventure operates three adventure parks in Switzerland, with locations in Aigle, Signal de Bougy and Sion. The success of Switzerland's adventure parks began with an entrepreneur full of ideas and enthusiasm. Thierry Chevalley, head of the Villars Ski School (the first independent ski school) and was looking for an alternative activity for the summer. He, and his then partner Jean-Claude Hefti, discovered the concept of "accrobranche" in France and decided to import it into Switzerland. Since 2001, Parc Aventure has been offering individuals, friends, families and groups an Adventure with a capital A. Parc Aventure is the leader in the field of adventure parks in Switzerland.

The Attraction

At each location, Parc Aventure is committed to enhancing and preserving the environment in which they operate. The construction, operation and maintenance of the parks are carried out with the utmost respect for the forest, which is protected and monitored closely.

Children between ages of 4 and 7 can play on courses especially designed for them, while ages 8 and up climb with an intelligent belay system on the main courses.

Parc Aventure was one of the first adventure parks to work with a smart belay system starting in 2011.

Why LockD Clips?

Parc Adventure considered several factors when making the decision to evaluate LockD Clips. The management was attracted to LockD Clips because the system is ergonomic and suitable for all hand sizes.

It was also important to Parc Adventure that LockD Clips are light, reliable and easy to use.

Above all, the system allows participants to negotiate any obstacle safely, which was Parc Adventure's top priority.

"We chose LockD Clips above all for the safety of our visitors."

- Paul Chevalley, directeur Parc Adventure
